Brunton Architects & Engineers adopted Monograph to centralize their project and firm management with real-time data visibility. This integration has improved efficiency and transparency, enabling the team to deliver customized, high-quality designs with precision at every step of the process.

> " So far, Monograph has been able to streamline our project management services along with provide clear and easy timesheet and staffing tools. "

Before Monograph, Brunton relied on separate programs for timesheets and project management, without effective forecasting capabilities. They were drawn to Monograph because it was specifically designed for the A&E industry, offering both a visually appealing interface and ease of use.

Today, Monograph underpins the firm's systems for tracking employee time, organizing project schedules, allocating staffing resources, processing invoices, and providing accurate financial projections. The platform is easy for all employees to use, offering clear, user-friendly features for both project managers and accounting.
